BA (Hons) Hand Embroidery

BA (Hons) Hand Embroidery is a world-renowned course delivered by the Royal School of Needlework (RSN) in dedicated studios at Hampton Court Palace.

Our full-time specialist Degree in Hand Embroidery provides a dynamic learning experience that connects your individual creative practice with textile and design theory. You will study in small groups with close tutor support and guidance from our experienced academics, professional RSN embroidery tutors, technical and student support teams.

We will encourage you to become a creative problem-solver, exploring traditional hand embroidery techniques within a contemporary context. As an RSN Degree Student you will have access to our onsite art and design library, IT suite and specialist textile resource. You can enjoy and learn from exquisite and rarely-seen embroideries to support your evolving research.

Visits to libraries, galleries and special collections will also enhance your study. The Royal School of Needlework has long-established industry links, providing students with valuable networking events.

Through participation in live projects and competitions, you will learn about the diverse career routes that hand embroidery offers.

The course will provide opportunities to widen your industry connections and explore career options through workshops for professional practice and employability.
