Our Skin Barrier

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN THE SKIN BARRIER IS COMPROMISED?

Fine lines are more pronounced due to dehydration in the skin

Skin discoloration from lack of nutrients

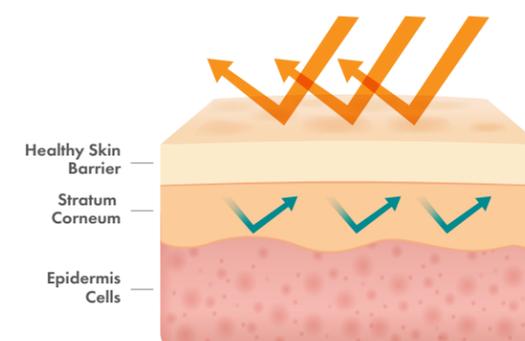

Redness occurs from inflammation in the body

Skin appears dull because of lack of blood flow to the skin

The skin is more sensitive to common skincare steps because the barrier is weakened by free radical damage

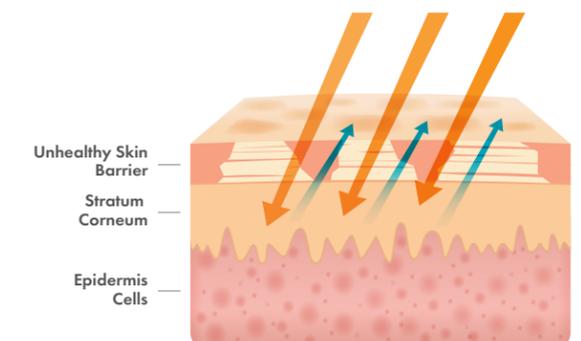

Healthy Skin

A healthy skin barrier will help to block pollutants from entering.

Unhealthy Skin

An unhealthy barrier allows pollutants & toxins to enter, causing further problems.

Vitamin C

Vitamin C is a powerful antioxidant that reduces redness, heals breakouts, evens skin tone and aids in the healthy aging journey by decreasing fine lines and wrinkles. Vitamin C is essential to produce collagen and elastin and since the body does not produce vitamin C on its own applying it topically is the best way to reap the benefits. There are several forms of vitamin C, each with unique properties and intended uses. Different potencies and targeted results make it a viable ingredient for several different skin types and concerns.

ASCORBIC ACID

Peach & Honey Mask, Tropical Topical Matte SPF 30

Retinoids

Topical retinoids are derived from vitamin A and come in several forms and strength, throughout the Sorella product line.

Retinoids work by prompting cellular turnover to promote new cell growth. This thickens the deeper layers of the skin by stimulating and strengthening collagen to reduce the appearance of fine lines and wrinkles.

Retinoids stimulate the production of new blood vessels in the skin leading to improved skin tone, fading dark spots, and softening rough patches.

Other benefits include reduced inflammation and unclogging blocked pores making it great for break out prone skin as well as the healthy aging journey.
